

Dragon in the Mirror: Into Canonsland

By Penelope S. Hawtrey

Jayden's family has always struggled for money. Now, mom's got cancer, too. When Jayden's parents try to hide the illness from her and then ask her to stay with her grandparents in the Okanagan Valley, the conversation concludes in a door-slaming fight.

Her best friend of four years, Wyndham the Knight and his dragon, overhear the argument and a first time invitation is finally extended to Jayden to visit their world—Canonsland. Jayden's warmly welcomed by Wyndham's family and the beautiful landscape of blue leafed weeping willows and green meadows greet her as well. If Jayden were looking for somewhere to escape, Canonsland seems to be the perfect place.

Things however, are not always as they seem; for there exists a treacherous Lord Fulke who has woven a plan together with help from a crafty wizard, Droart, to capture Wyndham. Jayden, Bob the Dog, Laurence, and the dragon embark on a mission to save Wyndham. But before long the Rescue Team discovers there's more to Lord Fulke's plan than one missing knight.

Author Bio

Goodreads Reader:

Loved it! Wasn't sure what to expect, but this was a very interesting story; one that kept you wanting to read the next chapter to see what was going to happen!

Penelope Hawtrey grew up in Southern Ontario, where she learned the value of hard work from her parents. Post-graduation from University, she worked in numerous administrative roles in various industries while she simultaneously pursued her passion for writing on evenings and weekends for almost a decade.

During that time, Penelope had several short stories published in literary journals such as Potluck Magazine, the Scarlet Leaf Review, and the Thieving Magpie. Then in 2016, Penelope published several short stories on Amazon. From one of the short stories initially released, she worked to create her first full-length novel, Dragon in the Mirror: Into Canonsland that is the first book in a planned series.

Currently, Penelope lives in Northeastern Canada with her husband and chocolate Labrador. In addition to working on a number of other writing projects, she also enjoys reading, running, and loves to travel.
